Styles and forms of music as well as instruments vary significantly between these eras. We hope you will join us to hear these sounds from the past.

Concert I: Dutch Treats and English Sweets
Sunday, November 22, 2026 3:30 PM

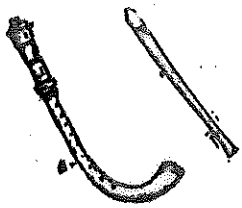

Music from the Dutch areas, the Netherlands, Flanders and Belgium, took on extreme prominence from the early Renaissance, mid 15th century, through much of the 16th century, though by mid 16th it had spread and become the common musical style throughout Europe, especially in sacred music. The composers we present were the outstanding musicians of the time, who were sought after and accepted church and court positions all over Europe. English music was prolific from the Middle Ages through the Baroque, though its styles were somewhat more isolated and slightly different from that of the Continent. We present music from all three of these eras on this program.

Concert II: Music of the Continent, Renaissance and Baroque
Sunday, May 2, 2027 3:30 PM

Concert II will present renaissance and baroque music from Continental composers and areas – France, Italy, Spain and Germany. Though the Netherlands style strongly influenced sacred music, the other geographic areas sought their own individuality in their secular music, and developed their own distinct styles and forms, often using their vernacular languages in vocal music. We will present these to show the contrasts from the Netherlands music, and how music changed from the Renaissance to the Baroque periods.
